Dear Class of 1985: I have great confidence in you as accomplisners.

You have survived 1984, a year that carried with it some dire predictions. In a mere sixteen years you will be well into 2001. You will have graduated from high school, college, and probably from graduate school. Many of you will have selected a marriage partner and launched a family along with a career. You will be standing on another threshold.

What will the following sixteen years hold for you? Will you be ready to take on added responsibilities and assume or share leadership roles in your professions, in your communities, in your families? Will you know how to guide the course of your children's young lives? I believe you will be ready and able to do all these things. Why?

You have already learned how to take responsibility for your own lives here in the small, nurturing community that is Barnard School. I am confident that you will continue to use the talents and the methods that you have developed under the caring tutelage of your teachers at Barnard to make a successful transition to life at college and to take your places in the wide, wide world that stands ready to welcome you, to challenge you, and to reward you with a life that is worth living.

Yours is a wonderfully challenging future to look forward to in a country where your efforts and your voices will make a difference.

As you leave the warmth and understanding atmosphere of Barnard School, I wish you good luck, great success and Godspeed.

Fondly,

Eunice S. Latham

Dear Everyone:

As Editor of this year's Mirror, I would like to take this opportunity to speak for myself and the entire yearbook staff when I say that putting The Mirror together was no small task! From the moment we began, until the last pages were completed, no one on the staff was at peace. There were deadlines to meet, photographs to be taken, (and taken over, and over . . .), and anxious advisors to appease. Yet through it all, the sense of adventure, and the feeling that comes with doing something worthwhile kept us going at a pace that was hectic, to say the least.

If someone were to ask me now what my favorite part of being Editor was, I would have to say it was helping organize the pictures. Looking through all of them, I saw old faces and new, and even a few people who have returned to Barnard after a few years' absence. Those photographs made me realize how much our school has changed in the six years I have been here, and how it will continue to change when I am gone. Yet the one thing that never changes about Barnard is the camaraderie among her students and faculty that comes from being such a small community.

Many of us never realize it, but we are all very fortunate to belong to such a unique school as Barnard. In what other school in this city can one find such a rigorous atmosphere during those cold winter months; or such dedicated teachers? And we would all have to search far and wide to find another school with a charming little dog sitting in the front hall, welcoming everyone who comes through the door.

These are the things that set our school apart from all the others, and this is what we have attempted to convey in The Mirror. Some may say we could have done better, but that is what putting a yearbook together is all about; realizing the strengths and weaknesses of the past and striving to do better. This year's staff has done the best we can to present a good yearbook, and we have had loads of fun, and have done tons of worrying in the process. We only hope that next year's staff derives as much pleasure from The Mirror as we have.

Sincerely,

Melanie R. Allen

ACTIVITIES

The Mirror

Our Yearbook, The Mirror, is a record of the four years we have spent in the High School. The class of 1985 wishes its book also to reflect the student body of the Barnard School. Thus every class from Kindergarten to Grade 12 is represented in photographs and candids.

I would like to thank the staff for the many fine pictures and the splendid drawings. I know that the Seniors will always enjoy looking back on their school years whenever in future days they open the Mirror.

Lori Diggs
Editor

As Editor of The Barnardian, I would like to give thanks to Ms. Kronstein and the Staff. They have given me a great deal of help in the past three years. I have learned many things. My goal as Editor has been to encourage the Staff members to improve their writing skills. I have tried to raise the paper's standards by making it more attractive to the reader, and by covering all the aspects of life at Barnard School.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank Mrs. Latham and all those who have helped to produce the newspaper.

To Marie-Pier,

Just remember, Doudou, when you're off on a dig somewhere in the wilds of l'outre-mer, and the food is terrible, the heat unbearable, and your prospects dim — in the words of Robert Frost.

"I shall be telling this with a sigh somewhere ages and ages hence:
two roads diverged in a wood, and I —
I took the one less traveled by,
And that has made all the difference."

Congratulations for what you have done, good luck in all you seek to achieve, and always remember you have our love, — ce qui fait toute la difference!
